

TEMPLATE AND PROCESS TO RETRIEVE SERVICE'S OWN REGULATORY NON-COMPLIANCE INFORMATION FROM THE NSW DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

A. BACKGROUND

According to both the Australian Children's Education & Care Authority (ACECQA)'s and the NSW Regulatory Authority, the publicly available Quality Ratings of early childhood education and care (ECEC) services across Australia and New South Wales as of 31 March 2025 are:

Approved Services with Quality Ratings	Australia (N = 16,564 services)	New South Wales (N = 5,723 services)
Overall Rating: Meeting or Higher	91.0% of all services	92.6% of all services
Quality Area 2 – Children's Health and Safety: Meeting or Higher	94.6% of all services	94.7% of all services

Yet, according to the Productivity Commission's Report of Government Services \(RoGS\) published on 11 February 2025, the NSW jurisdiction were reported as having:

- 19,515 breaches/confirmed non-compliances (ie 54.9% of the national total); and
- a 325.3% probability per early childhood education and care service of recording a breach.

For the corresponding reported period, the NSW Regulatory Authority published that they had 13 enforcement actions (ie 0.07% of the total number of breaches/confirmed non-compliances).

And the last 5 consecutive years have had similar reports. (See attached graphs and table.)

The above is also in the context that the NSW Productivity Commissioner published in December 2022 its Evaluation of NSW-specific early childcare regulations confirming that NSW-based ECEC services has higher regulatory requirements than other Australian states.

Given NSW's breaches/non-compliances dwarf all other Australian states and territories combined, and such appears at odds with published Quality Ratings, the NSW Parliament's recent call for documents from the NSW Department of Education has concerned a number of ECEC services.

The primary concern being that as the NSW Regulatory Authority holds such a significant amount of regulatory information, their public release could be wrongly misconstrued and thus pose reputational damage to their and/or their early childhood educators/teachers.

B. ACCESSING NSW DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION DOCUMENTS UNDER FREEDOM OF INFORMATION

Under the Westminster system of government and democracy, the NSW Department of Education must be transparent wherever possible. Hence, NSW-based ECEC services, their early childhood educators and teachers are by default entitled to what records the NSW Regulatory Authority has on them.

To receive a copy of such information, freedom of information requests can be made to the NSW Department of Education using the NSW Government Information \(Public Access\) Act 2009. The cost to seek such information is $30 per application.

E. REQUESTING/CHALLENGING FOR AMENDMENTS/REMOVAL OF INACCURATE RECORDS

It is worth comparing the documents received from the NSW Department of Education against those available via the NQS ITS portal showing your service(s)’ breaches/non-compliances.

Following your review of the documents received from the NSW Department of Education, you may then consider formally requesting the NSW Department of Education to amend/remove specific documents from their systems on the basis of inaccuracies or false information.

Should this not be possible, or should the NSW Department of Education refuse, you may consider applying to the NSW Civil Administrative Tribunal \(NCAT\) to seek their services to help you resolve the issue/dispute fairly and according to the law against the NSW Department of Education.

The fees of the NCAT for approved providers are published online.

When at the NCAT, you may choose to represent yourself or seek assistance from legal practitioners.
